Welcome to www.culturalstudies.net

This is our new home!

Many more changes, additions, and innovations are coming this summer. Don't touch that back button!

The CSC Reading Room is open again.

(Please go to <http://www.washtech.org/day2/index.html> for information on how to help the Amazon.com customer support workers.)

Once the Reading Room is open, we will begin to add the following:

1. Growth from one to several to many booksellers, large and small. We will also have links to books in the public domain. We have no plans to leave Amazon, but do wish our surfers to pay attention to the situations of workers in ALL e-commerce companies.
2. Partnerships with other academic/reading/writing supply dealers like Levenger and/or whomever is interested in setting up a partnership to offer high quality products helpful to academics. I will direct you to good prices for good products on these sites. Remember, CSC gets absolutely no

Tags: bundle tags

Bundles are a way to arrange previously-used tags into groups. For example, if you have the tags "design", "painting", and "moma", you may want to group these together into a bundle called "art". To create a new bundle, type the name of the bundle and click create. You can then start entering tags by clicking on the tag cloud below, or by typing tags directly into the text box. To remove a tag, click on the tag in the cloud or delete it from the text box. When you are finished, you must remember to hit the save changes button, or your changes will be lost.
